

Vets defy Supreme Court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Anti-war vets voted yesterday night to sleep at encampment at the foot of Capitol in defiance of a Supreme Court ban the advice of their lawyer, former Army General Ramsey Clark.

There were few national park police or other of Columbia officers in sight when nearly 900 demonstrators voted by delegations and then announced their plan, by a tally of 480 to 400, to camp in the night.

They rejected an alternative proposal to stay awake all night on the mall, which presumably would have fit in the Justice Department's camping ground rules.

Police buses and patrol wagons were lined behind buildings a couple of blocks from the mall area, ready to move in for arrests.

However, a Justice Department spokesman indicated that "they're in defiance with the court order" as long as veterans do not actually sleep on the grounds. The Supreme Court in its last stand Chief Justice Warren E.

Burger's order of Tuesday forbidding overnight sleeping out on the mall, the veterans' chief negotiator with the government Ramsey Clark, approached microphones and urged them to obey the court ruling.

He was greeted with shouts of defiance and the veterans then proceeded to canvass sentiment.

Without ever saying so the government appeared to be handling the situation delicately, without forcing the issue, with the aim of setting a precedent for denying larger, potentially violent groups of antiwar militants access to camping sites in the coming days of mass demonstrations.

"We stay and we sleep" announced former Navy Lt. J.G. John Kerry, a Yale university graduate who is a leader of the veterans group. He said a majority of the demonstrators had indicated they would go along passively with any arrests.

The government rules forbid any overnight use of bedrolls, making fires, erecting any shelter or tent other than a medical tent, breaking ground or cooking on the mall, the grassy parkland extending from the Capitol grounds west to the Lincoln Memorial.

Same results produced in ASBYU Primary replay

For the second time, Reed Wilcox and Leonard Menka have been declared finalists for ASBYU president—along with all other winners in last week's primary election, which was ruled "invalid" by the ASBYU Supreme Court.

The vote difference between candidates fluctuated very little from the previous voting, although 5,551 voters turned out in comparison to 4,814 last week.

"As to the outcome of the election, nobody seems extremely surprised," said Randee Greenwell, elections committee chairman, after reading the results last night.

A skippy crowd—including only three candidates—were on hand to hear the election results read.

Greenwell added that "computerized statistics from the first election showed there had not been a large transfer of votes."

The first primary election was ruled invalid by the Supreme Court earlier this week on the grounds that many students did not vote for the candidate of their choice because of a misunderstanding about which lever in the voting booth corresponded to which candidate.

According to the Committee, two more candidates have dropped out of the running—one a finalist.

Kent Smith, one of two candidates for vice president of Organizations, withdrew yesterday, although his name remained on the ballot. He polled 1,953 votes compared to Steve Kilpatrick's 2,455. Kilpatrick is now the sole candidate for the office.

Stew Shaver, the tail-end voter-getter in the first primary balloting for vice president of Athletics, withdrew before the second primaries were held Tuesday and Wednesday. His name was not on the ballot.

Indian presidential candidate Leonard Menka and running mate Bob Angle were the biggest vote gamers among candidates with an increase of 493.

Wilcox and executive vice presidential running mate Joel Peterson captured a definite lead with 2,186 votes over Menka-Angle (1,616), Russ Wood-Dave Oler (956), Chuck Henry-Ryan Jensen (483), and Richard Sarver-Jeff Christensen (64).

In the Athletics race, Chris Dowling continued to hold a 2-1 lead over his nearest contender with 2,156 votes to Clint Hunter's 1,016.

The only switch in leads went to social office candidate Walt Marlowe (1,819) over Terry Jessop (1,682). Jessop led Marlowe 1,572 to 1,542 in the first primary election, although both will remain on the final ballot.

Alan Wilkins scooted to a commanding lead in the Student Relations race in the second balloting with 3,334 votes to Wayne Corliss' 978. Corliss lost 46 votes in the second balloting while Wilkins picked up 476.

ASBYU finalists will address students today in forum assembly.

According to the Elections Committee, each of the vice-presidential candidates will speak—in alphabetical order within the office—for two minutes.

The presidential candidates and their running mates will follow with two minute speeches each.

Final elections will be held Tuesday and Wednesday of next week.

Voting booths will only be located in the Wilkinson Center for the final balloting, according to Randee Greenwell, Elections Committee chairman.

"We have determined that ASBYU functions should take place in the Wilkinson Center and that student voting can now approach the level of regular precinct voting," she said. "We will no longer cater to certain colleges by placing booths in academic buildings."

Martha hits out at 'nine old men'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Martha Mitchell said yesterday the Supreme Court "should be abolished" for its ruling upholding the practice of busing to integrate public schools.

"It's absolutely asinine for those nine old men to rule against the people," said the outspoken wife of Attorney General John N. Mitchell in a telephone interview.

"We should extinguish the Supreme Court," she said. "We have no youth on the court, no southerners, no women—just nine old men."

Get the lead out!

(Summarized from Clear Creek, issue 2, May 1971)

Lead, a poison which has plagued humanity since ancient times, is being poured into the earth's environment in unprecedented quantity. In the May 1971 issue of Clear Creek, Polly Roberts, a Nader Raider, tells the story of lead in America. Among her findings:

- At least 400,000 American children, most of them poor, have dangerously high levels from nibbling leaded paints, which are still sold for indoor use.
- The lead content of American air is steadily rising, and lead is collecting in the bones of Americans. Conventional wisdom about the relative safety of lead, developed by Dr. Robert Kehoe with the funding of the Ethyl Corporation, has recently been largely discredited. The scientific community is apprehensive, and many fear that urban American society is slowly breathing in the fate which led to the upper classes of declining Rome.
- Major oil companies have added lead to their premium gasolines, and come out with saturation-advertised "no-lead" and "low-lead" fuels. Lead is a cheap means of increasing gasoline octane rating (smoothness of burning). Gasoline blenders make their "no-lead" and "low-lead" fuels with relatively expensive "clear" octane components. Then they add tetraethyl lead to their premium fuels, to raise the octane rating without buying more "clear" octane components. Because each additional gram of tetraethyl lead increases octane rating less than the previous gram, the blenders must add more lead to the premium fuels than they take out of the "clear" fuels. The net effect is the raising of the average lead content of gasoline, and the addition of more lead to America's atmosphere than was being fumed out before the change.

- The Clean Air Act of 1970 is clean only in name. The Act requires the gradual addition of catalytic mufflers to new autos. These mufflers are fragile and expensive, and inspection stations must be established to make sure drivers aren't ripping them off. Old cars will run on heavily-leaded fuels. The internal combustion engine, which even many automobile manufacturers admit won't be abandoned, will spume on for another decade or more. The search for alternate transportation modes will be delayed, and America's air will get heavier with lead and other pollutants.
- Two major reports on lead poisoning in America—the Five Cities Study and the Lead Criteria Document—are presently complete. Both of these reports are being "suppressed" by the U.S. National Air Pollution Control Administration. Clear Creek has obtained a copy of part of the Five Cities Study. This study offers evidence that the air at test sites in Los Angeles is increasing in lead content at an average rate of seven per cent per year, compounded annually. Los Angeles' atmospheric lead levels are well above the California Public Health Service "safe" limit already, and will soon pass the industry-proposed limit of 10 micrograms per cubic meter over a 24-hour period.

'Pot hunters' are desecrating Indian graves

By VAN A. REIDHEAD

Suppose that 25 years from now you returned to the cemetery where your father, mother and ancestors were buried, only to find gaping holes and strewn bones where their graves had once been. You could tell by the method in which the graves had been destroyed, that not animals, but men, had set in the hope of robbing rings, necklaces and even gold fillings had desecrated the resting place of your kin.

Sound atrocious? Every year, hundreds of thoughtless Utah citizens take to the deserts and canyons to form an army that destroys thousands of Indian burial mounds.

These graves are not dug by the skilled and cautious hand of the archaeologist, but rather by "pot hunters," who want nothing more than the pottery which is often found in the sacred Indian cemeteries.

Once the pottery is taken, all too often the bones of America's first settlers are left scattered upon the ground, victims of our white greed.

Recently, I accompanied a BYU archaeologist close to Montezuma Canyon, near Blanding, Utah. Literally hundreds, perhaps thousands of ancient Anasazi Indian ruins (sites), dot Montezuma Canyon. The BYU Dept. of Anthropology and Archaeology has been instrumental in locating and mapping many of these sites.

Alongside each Indian ruin is generally found a burial mound with its associated pottery, beads and other artifacts. I was appalled to travel the full length of Montezuma Canyon (60 miles) and find that almost every cemetery had been robbed. All of the larger burial grounds had been raided.

Until last year, one large graveyard enjoyed some degree of seclusion and remained untouched.

Our party visited the village where this burial is located. We walked to the edge of a small mesa which gave a view of the cemetery. The sight which met our eyes was somewhat reminiscent of our own graveyards with their sloping hills and green grass. But, this was chopped to pieces by 50 or more large holes. Human bones had been torn from their graves and cluttered the ground.

One of the most ironic features of "pot hunting" is that grave robbers are not interested in the history of the people they rob. Their only interests are the money and self aggrandizement they can receive by selling or hoarding the ancient relics, many of which are more than a thousand years old.

The majority of vessels which are not sold go into back rooms or basements where they collect dust. There, they are hidden from the public and from the archaeologist who could use them to reconstruct American history.

Perhaps more tragic than anything else is the fact that the careless shovel of the "pot digger" destroys forever a piece of American heritage that can never be replaced.

The major problem facing archaeologists today is the wanton destruction of archaeological sites, according to Dick Miller, graduate assistant in the dept. of anthropology and archaeology, who headed the Montezuma Canyon trip.

Archaeologists are caught in a race with "pot hunters." It has become almost impossible to find a ruin that has not been pillaged, says Miller. Once a site has been disturbed, part of the story is lost and irreplaceable. "Archaeologists are losing everything they have to work with," Miller says.

The problem is not remote. It exists to a shocking degree right here in Utah County. According to Dr. Ray Matheny, associate professor of anthropology and archaeology at BYU, as many as 98 per cent of the sites in Utah County have been vandalized. There are a great number of sites in Utah County and robbing them is a popular pastime of many local citizens, Matheny said.

According to Dr. Matheny, those who loot archaeological sites are greedy, thoughtless and ignorant to the value of the ancient relics they destroy, sell and hoard. Many people think of these priceless cultural remains as private resources to be exploited at will, said Matheny.

Dr. Matheny commented that the whole public is unaware of the possibilities that lie in the ancient ruins. The knowledge we can gain from them is enormous. Their future use for recreational and educational purposes is invaluable, according to Matheny.

There are federal laws which could protect this fragment of America's vanishing heritage, but apathy on the part of law enforcement, the judiciary and the citizenry has made these laws unfunctional, Matheny said.

According to Dr. Matheny, almost nothing is being done to stop this mass thievery.

One of the saddest implications of all, is that many "pot hunters" take the form of active and influential LDS Church members and law enforcement agents. It can hardly be supposed that these groups act in ignorance.

Yet, we are all ignorant to an extent, ignorant to the amount of knowledge that can be gleaned from past Indian civilizations and ignorant to the degree of sophistication achieved by these ancient peoples.

A great deal has been learned from the old Indian cultures. Much of this information has assisted our own development. But, this helpful knowledge has been pieced together by scientists carefully study the remains of Indian, not by grave robbers, dig for self esteem.

There is still a great deal to be learned by scientific excavation. This information will enlighten us, if it is not destroyed. This problem is not unique to Utah. The entire Southwest, all of America is faced with devastating problems that threaten to destroy a rich, colorful page of American history.

We have developed the advanced civilization in history of the world, yet for reason, we have never learned to resist the greed which constantly raps our land of only its natural resources. We must learn to control our own rest, man's past.

Resist apathy. Do something.

Nine professors chosen for Maeser awards

Nine BYU professors will receive the Karl G. Maeser teaching, research, and creative arts awards Tuesday at the Devotional Assembly.

Featured speaker at the 10 a.m. assembly in the Smith Fieldhouse is Dr. Robert K. Thomas, academic vice president of BYU. The public is invited.

Recipients of the awards, presented annually by the BYU Alumni Association, are Dr. Harold I. Hansen, Karl G. Maeser Distinguished Teaching Award, a $1,000 cash award; Profs. Ralph A. Britsch, Stephen R. Covey, Edwin B. Morrell, and Floyd Sucher, the Karl G. Maeser Awards for Teaching Excellence, a $500 cash award each.

The Karl G. Maeser Research and Creative Arts Award will go to Dr. J. Rex Goates, Dr. J. Bevan Ott, Dr. David M. Donaldson, and Dr. Lael J. Woodbury. Each of these awards is a $3,000 grant restricted for scientific or creative arts projects.

Dr. Goates and Ott will share their award to continue specialized research in chemistry. Noted for his 34 years as director of the Hill Cumorah Pageant, Dr. Hansen received his B.S. degree at Utah State University and his M.S. and Ph.D. degrees at the University of Iowa. A professor of speech and dramatic arts, he is a well-known authority on the history of the theater on the American frontier.

A professor of English and chairman of the Dept. of Humanities and Comparative Literature, Prof. Britsch has written many articles for the LDS Church as well as "A Humanities Reader" which is used as a text at BYU. He received from BYU his B.A. and his M.A. in 1951. In addition, he has studied at Wisconsin, Washington, Oklahoma, and South Carolina.

Former assistant to the president and director of University Relations, Prof. Covey is now an assistant professor of business management. He received his B.S. degree from BYU and his MBA from Harvard. Instrumental in starting the MBA Program at BYU, Prof. Covey is well-known for his articles and lectures on human relations and leadership.

Dr. Morrell, associate professor of political science and chairman of the Political Science Dept., is a specialist on Russia and spent nine months in 1959-60 doing research at Moscow University. He received his B.S. degree at BYU and his M.A. and Ph.D. from Harvard.

A specialist in reading education, Dr. Sucher has been instrumental in teaching thousands of children to read and in helping various school districts with reading programs for students having reading difficulty. He received his B.S. degree from BYU, his M.A. at I.A. State, and his Ed.D. at Colorado State College.

Dr. Goates and Ott, who are presently working on a one-year $31,000 grant from the Atomic Energy Commission for research in alkali metals, are continuing with the research they began three years ago. Dr. Goates, a professor of chemistry, received his B.S. degree from BYU and his Ph.D. from University of Wisconsin. Dr. Ott earned his B.S. and M.S. degrees at BYU, and his Ph.D. from the University of California at Berkeley.

A professor of microbiology, Dr. Donaldson is working on substances that will protect persons from radiation injury. He received his B.S., M.S., and Ph.D.

degrees from the University of Utah.

Dr. Woodbury, a professor of dramatic arts and assistant dean of the College of Fine Arts and Communications, has been assistant director of the Hill Cumorah Pageant and has authored and directed numerous plays and pageants. He received his B.S. degree from USU, his M.A. from BYU, and his Ph.D. at the University of Illinois.

Former BYU student gets Washington lobbyist post

David Evan Ushio has arrived. When the 24-year-old BYU graduate student assumes the title of Assistant Director of the Japanese-American Citizens' League after a year's internship learning the ropes, he will become the most influential lobbyist for the Japanese-American minority in the U.S.

Ushio, a Salt Lake native who received a B.S. in International Relations and Political Science from BYU in 1970, will take the reins from Michael Masaoka who now heads the League. "If the Japanese have a hero, Masaoka is it," remarked Richard S. Beal, political science instructor.

A former administrative assistant to the International Relations Program in 1970-71 and missionary to Japan in 1966-68, Ushio gained his position after three months of interviews with the League's board in San Francisco, Chicago and other cities.

Now in Washington, D.C., assisting Masaoka, meeting officials and legislators, and formulating legislation, Ushio will spend a year learning the preliminaries before he officially claims his desk. His father, Shigeki Ushio, reports the League will probably put David through law school at either Georgetown or George Washington University. Ushio's duties as chief Japanese-American lobbyist include representing the national Japanese-American Citizens' League in the nation's capital and in East Coast and Midwestern chapters. He will aid in planning the League's national convention in Washington, slated for 1972.

Not only will he gather information and influence legislation concerning Japanese-Americans, but he will also meet with other minorities—Negroes, Italians, and Jews—on issues of common interest.

MENKA

Leonard Menka is the most experienced candidate for ASBYU president. He has worked with real government: federal, state, and local. He administered a VISTA program, supervised over a hundred employees. He worked for the State of Alaska, the Alaska Federation of Natives, and an Anchorage Funding Organization, all in administrative positions.

And Leonard Menka isn't tied to any existing ASBYU programs. He has no strings attached, no slogans masking the same old things. With the new administration, changes are likely at BYU, and promises made now might be meaningless next year. Menka's program is to apply his administrative experience to the ASBYU; to eliminate waste, to implement new ideas, and to upgrade existing programs.

Menka is the only candidate whose experience in administration extends beyond the fourth floor of the Wilkinson Center. ASBYU is the only government that students get to choose. Why not choose the best?

'Keep earth livable'

Earth Day activities

By UPI
High placed officials and average citizens joined in pledges to keep the earth livable on Earth day yesterday.

President Nixon had officially proclaimed the day as Earth day—the high point of a week of nationwide activities aimed at dramatizing the need for action to preserve the environment.

"I believe we can get the job done," Interior Secretary Rogers B. Morton told a task force on environment at the White House conference on Youth meeting in Estes Park, Colo. "But if we don't have confidence in our ability to change the system, we might as well give up."

Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., who conceived the idea of Earth day and co-sponsored the first one last year, said at Boytown, Neb., he is preparing a bill that would stop widespread use of pesticides and herbicides. Nelson said, "man is indiscriminately medicating almost all the world's creatures, including man, without bothering to have a doctor write a prescription."

Duke Reynolds, a Taoist, N.M., architect, revealed a plan to construct buildings with beams made of empty beer cans which would otherwise wind up as trash. He expressed confidence that the cans, sandwiched between planks, would support considerable stress. The Taoist N.M. News, a weekly newspaper, devoted its entire front page to articles on pollution ecology and began what it called a "pollution box score" to keep readers informed about environmental conditions inside and outside the state.

The Baltimore Citizens' Planning and Housing Association held out free flower seeds on downtown streets, while Maryland high school students from throughout the state cleaned up roadways and river beds.

University of Utah students and "interested citizens" floated down the 40-mile long Jordan River through Utah and the Great Salt Lake to view pollution and destruction of river area ecology.

Earth Day activities in other cities included San Francisco, Los Angeles, Columbus, Ohio, New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Dallas.

Art professor escapes Thailand fire

A BYU professor and his wife were among the Americans who escaped from the Imperial Hotel fire in Bangkok, Thailand Tuesday.

UPI reported that Dr. and Mrs. J. Roman Andrus lost all their belongings in the fire except passports and a few travelers' checks, but escaped unharmed from the early morning fire which killed 24.

The five-story hotel housed families of American diplomats and military personnel among the 50 or 60 guests in its 110 rooms. Most of the guests were asleep when the fire was started accidentally by a kitchen stove about 4 a.m.

"There was no alert," said W.T. Johnson, a U.S. employee from Saigon staying in the hotel. "The hotel employees fled when the fire started." Guests had to wake themselves.

Dr. Andrus, a professor in the BYU Art Department, and his wife were in Bangkok on a sabbatical leave which started in late February. The purpose of their Oriental sabbatical is to collect artifacts and confer with artists and printers of the Far East countries.

According to Air Force Capt. James G. Andrus, who is on leave with his family in Provo and staying in his father's home, Dr. Andrus was also visiting with his daughter and son-in-law who are attached to the diplomatic service in Japan.

Capt. Andrus received a call late Tuesday from his brother-in-law who had received a communique from the U.S. embassy in Bangkok about their father's condition. Dr. Andrus is due back in Japan today or tomorrow.

Integration vote 'no'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Raising aside charges of racism and political timidity, the Senate easily defeated Tuesday a bill that would have required the same degree of school integration in big cities in the North as that imposed in the South.

The 51-35 vote killed a proposal by Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, Conn., to require all schools in metropolitan areas to enroll a fixed percentage of minority students within 10 years or federal aid to education.

Ribicoff said northern liberals "leading to yesterday's vote" were "trying to tell the South to segregate when we continue a segregated policy."

Opponents of adoption of his bill, Ribicoff said his "northern liberal colleagues don't have the guts to tell their constituents in the North that they're wrong."

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, a leading northern liberal, said Ribicoff's plan would delay northern segregation partly because it stretched over so many years.

He also dismissed Ribicoff's argument of hypocrisy and racial gutlessness. "I make you feel that we're the only ones—that we're protecting our brethren—as to our eyes. We cannot forget a great national justice—southern segregation—had to be corrected."

Old works performed

Works from the 17th, 18th and 20th centuries will be presented in concert by the BYU Chamber Orchestra today at 8:15 p.m. in the Madsen Recital Hall, HFAC. The Chamber Orchestra, which is comprised of advanced musicians of the University, will be under the direction of Dr. David Dalton.

Dr. Dalton and Prof. Percy Kait will be the featured soloists in the "Symphonic Concertante", for violin, viola and orchestra by Mozart, while James White, violinist, will perform the Stravinsky "Pastorale" for violin and wind instruments in tribute to the passing of the great contemporary composer.

Opening the concert will be the "Concertino in F minor" for strings and organ by the Italian Baroque composer, Giovanni Pergolesi.

A second work by Mozart stemming from his teen-age years will also be included in the evening performance "The Divertimento in D, K. 136." This infrequently heard string work from the composer's output is a serenade of the type often played at aristocratic social functions of the period.

Closing the concert is a rarity from the pen of the foremost Soviet composer of the present, Dimitri Shostakovich. The work, entitled "The Two Pieces, Op. 11", is filled with angular melodies and pulsating rhythms typical of World War I music of the early twenties.

Admission to the concert is free.

Violist joins recital Friday

One of the world's outstanding violists, Dr. Clyn Barrus, will perform in a joint recital with Dr. Reid Nibley Friday at 4:15 p.m. in the Madsen Recital Hall. The public is invited without charge.

Early in the week the two musicians will give recitals at Ricks College and Caldwell College in Idaho, Dr. Barrus' home state. The program includes sonatas by Brahms and Hindemith, piano solos by Chopin, and lighter duets by Hase, Ravel and Paganini.

After three years at the Curtis Institute of Music, Dr. Barrus went to the Vienna Academy of Music and Performing Arts, where he was awarded the highest honor upon graduation. In addition to solo work, chamber concerts and recordings, he performed throughout Europe, America and Asia as soloist with the Vienna Symphony, receiving rave reviews from the press. He earned his doctorate from the University of Michigan, and now teaches at Southern Illinois University.

Dr. Nibley, a BYU pianist-in-residence, is well known as an international concert pianist and was for ten years official pianist with the Utah Symphony.

Noted artist Muech Kohn, Chicago, prepares a lithograph stone by placing an image on the stone's surface. An edition will be printed directly from the stone. Examples will be exhibited in the Harris Fine Arts Gallery tomorrow.

Lithographs and etchings to be presented in HFAC

A special one day showing of original lithographs and etchings will be presented tomorrow in the Harris Fine Arts Center, from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m.

"The public is invited to view this unique collection of Lakeside Studios in Michigan and to meet its director, Mr. John Wilson, who is accompanying the exhibit," according to Floyd Brimholt, Chairman of the art department at BYU.

The collection contains several hundred original prints by Picasso, Roussil, Braque, Goya, Daumier, Dali, Arp, Lauts—all for sale.

'Kings of the Highway'

Army to 'strike up'

The United States Army Field Band and Soldiers' Chorus of Washington, D.C., will perform in a free concert tonight in the Fieldhouse. There will be a 1:30 p.m. matinee for children and an evening performance at 7:30 p.m. which is open to the public.

Tickets will be necessary for the evening performance. BYU and the Provo Daily Herald, co-sponsors of the band's Provo appearance, have arranged ticket distribution in many local areas including the ticket window of the HFCAC and the Daily Herald office.

Some of the places where tickets may be obtained include the Provo Chamber of Commerce, Albertson's market in Provo and Orem, Wakefield's music in Provo, the Army recruiting office in Provo, Builder's Office Supply, and Salmon Pharmacy in Orem.

The band is known the world over as "Kings of the Highway" because they have performed for audiences in all fifty states, Canada, Mexico, South and Central America and the Far East.

They will present a varied musical program of marches, semi-classical and pop numbers. Some of the selections will include special arrangements of the "Romeo and Juliet Overture," "Hey Jude," and Grieg's "Piano Concerto in A Minor," and standards from the band's and chorus' repertoire.

The Army Band is the official touring representative of the United States Army. The band and chorus will also be performing in a concert at the Tabernacle in Salt Lake City, tomorrow at 8:00 p.m. and the Fine Arts Center of the U.S.U. Campus in Logan.

Fresh approach to news on KBYU

"All things considered," a different approach to broadcast journalism, will be broadcast live from 6 to 7:30 p.m. Monday through Friday over KBYU FM beginning May 3, 1971.

The program, a National Public Radio Network release, is aimed at giving the individual a more humanistic view of the environment and at going to primary news sources for first-hand information whenever possible.

The new approach is designed to give public radio an identity of its own.

"All things considered" will have a very flexible format, according to William Siemering, director of Programming for the NPR Network. Each program will respond to a fresh set of circumstances and events. Siemering said the elements of unity, reality, respect, and relativity will be incorporated into each program.

"All things considered" will be different because today's events are different, Siemering said.

Three cultural groups to perform Friday nite

A unique gathering of professional and new talent in dancing and singing, representing the Indian tribes from North and South America, and Polynesian groups from the Pacific Islands will present a colorful program in the Valley Music Hall tomorrow with two performances beginning at 7:30 p.m. and 9:15 p.m.

This will be the first time in the nation's history where three major cultural groups will join in presenting entertainment in the fine arts representing their respective cultural groups.

Among featured performers slated for the extravaganza will be the "Lamsite Generation." This is a group of young American Indians from various tribes who do a variety of comedy skits, dance numbers from musical hits, and popular vocal selections.

Rolando Gonzales, Lima, Peru, an opera singer who has auditioned for the San Francisco Opera Company, will sing selections that have made him popular in his native country as a professional opera singer.

Estela Dolmar, from Mendoza, Argentina, will do the Flamenco dance with several years of professional dancing throughout Argentina and for the American Field Service in California behind her.

Stan Bronson, who has made five major recordings, will sing some of his original that have made him a well-known recording artist in Utah.

Arlene Williams, a Navajo Indian from Arizona who has had success in the recording business, will sing a few of her original ballads depicting Indian life. Arlene is currently making another record which she hopes to have out soon.

The purpose of the extravaganza has developed through the "deep concern of these cultural groups in regard to the future education of their people," according to one pamphlet.

They are presently trying to raise funds to help provide future scholarship assistance to upcoming Indian, Latin American and Polynesian young people who will want to get a college education at a Church college sponsored by the LDS Church.

Semester in Jerusalem resumed

Jerusalem, Egypt, Lebanon, Turkey and Greece will provide the classrooms for BYU students next year who spend a "Semester in Jerusalem."

The Department of Travel Studies, in cooperation with the Department of Religious Instruction, have announced that they will resume the "Semester in Jerusalem" program with the spring semester, 1972.

Because of the Mideast conflict, this program was temporarily discontinued after a session in 1968.

The semester will be under the direction of Dr. Lamar C. Berrett, knowledgeable and experienced in the affairs of the Holy Land.

College credit is given for the travel semester of studies. Participants must be sophomores by the beginning of that semester and should begin preparations for the trip now.

While basking in the sun of a "vacation," students may busy themselves studying New and Old Testament, Arabic, Hebrew and Biblical Aramaic. Topics of interest also include English, education, the arts, literature, philosophy, economics and more.

Participation in Middle East studies and history will be on location with possible lectures by Jewish and Arab leaders.

Interested students should contact the Dept. of Travel Studies.

Stretching their campus to the Holy Lands next February, students in the "Semester in Jerusalem" program will visit these ruins in Baulbeck, Lebanon.

The Tombs of the Queens, in Egypt, will provide the "textbook" for students participating in the recently resumed "Semester in Jerusalem."

Earth Week continues with water pollution, population

Earth Week offerings today range from water pollution to over population.

Gerald Bradshaw, professor of chemistry, and David White, water ecologist will speak on the West Patio, ELWC at 12 noon. Their subject is "Water, Water Everywhere, But Not a Drop to Drink."

Glen Moore, professor of botany, will address interested students on the subject, "Too Many People," today at 7:30 p.m.

in 184 JKB.

"Where Does All the Garbage Go?" will provide the final lecture of the week at 12:30 p.m. Friday in 321 ELWC. LaVere Merritt, a civil engineer, will analyze the dumps of humanity.

Church urges support on cancer drive

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The First Presidency of the LDS Church asked members of the church Tuesday to give their support to the American Cancer Society.

The statement signed by President Joseph Fielding Smith and his counselors, President Harold B. Lee and President N. Eldon Tanner, urged LDS members to aid the society's fund-raising crusade.

The officials said, "During April some 17,000 volunteer workers for the society will visit all Utah homes and business firms. They will also distribute information on symptoms and treatment of cancer."

"The society's efforts have saved the lives of many cancer victims and brought scientists closer to finding an answer to the disease which we are informed will strike more than 2,100

Utahns this year.

"We recommend that members of the Church give favorable consideration to this appeal within the limits of their means and other commitments to similar worthwhile programs."

To focus attention on the cancer society's drive the President of the United States and the governor of Utah have proclaimed April to be cancer control month.

Stars blast Pacers, move closer to title

By R.C. ROBERG
Sports Editor

It's back to Anderson, Indiana for what could be the deciding game in the western division playoffs between the Utah Stars and the Indiana Pacers.

Today's game with the Pacers is scheduled for the Anderson High School gym, but seeing that basketball is a way of life in Indiana, the seating capacity is around 9,000.

However, due to a transmittal difficulty the Utah Indiana game will not be televised, but can be heard on KSL radio starting at 5:30 p.m.

If a sixth game is necessary it will be played in the Salt Palace Saturday night starting at 7:30 p.m.

By virtue of its convincing 126-91 rout Tuesday over the Pacers, Utah moved one step closer to winning the western division championship and a shot at either the Kentucky Colonels or the Virginia Squires, presently in contention for the eastern division crown.

Utah built up a 33-13 lead at the conclusion of the first quarter, and were never in any serious trouble throughout the remainder of the game.

"It was a complete team victory," stated a very happy Utah coach Bill Sharman after the Stars' win over the Pacers to take

Prep athletes set for weekend meet

The prep equivalent of the thundering herd—the annual Invitational Meet at BYU—will be sixty years old Saturday.

And high school athletes from Utah and surrounding states will help celebrate the event by attacking records that would have looked totally improbable back in 1911.

This year's meet will have that slim-trim look, since the number of participants was pared down to a more workable size. Prior to last year's trimming, the spring circus attracted as many as 4,500 participants from Utah and five surrounding states.

"There's no indication that any quality has been sacrificed in this year's meet," said Dr. Clayne Jensen, one of the directors of the meet. "In fact, we will all be very much surprised if three or four records aren't broken Saturday."

However, meet officials would be very much surprised if someone were to break the record in the all-around event. That record was set last year by Olympian High School's Dave Powell, who had a total of 7,479 points for the nine all-around events.

Powell has since joined BYU's track and field forces, and his point total and all-around record seem unapproachable.

But youth will have its day, and there are a number of athletes entering this year's event who feel Powell's mark can be shattered, just as Powell broke the former record held for eight years by Neil Roberts.

The first of the all-around events is scheduled for 8:30 a.m. tomorrow morning. Tennis and golf competition in the Class A and Class B divisions will begin at the same hour.

a commanding 3-1 lead in the best of seven series.

Zelmo Beatty led the Stars' attack with 22 points, followed by Merv Jackson (17), Glen Combs (17) and Ron Boone with (14) tallies.

High scoring honors for the Pacers went to Bill Keller with 20 points. Former University of Purdue All-American Rick Mount added 17 points in the Pacers' losing cause.

Cat golfers in Phoenix

By R.C. ROBERG
Sports Editor

BYU's golf team left behind the clouded skies of Provo yesterday enroute south to compete in the Sun Devil Gold Classic Tournament.

BYU, showing no ill effects of last week's upset loss to Utah, came back with a 19-3 rout over Weber State Tuesday to start the Phoenix sojourn off to a good start.

While the Cougar linksmen's dual record is 5-2, their tournament record, is impressive. The BYU strikers have won three straight tournament victories, and will be out to make at four straight in Phoenix this weekend.

In the Weber match BYU's All-American Ray Leach regained his form and broke the Patio Springs course record with a blistering five-under par 67, which bettered the previous course record by two strokes.

Another BYU golf All-American Chip Garrus after a somewhat disappointing season came through with a one-under par round of 71. Freshmen Joey Dills, continued to improve his game each week as he recorded a one-under par round also.

Rusty Guernsey, Dave Shipley and Lance Suzuki fired three-over par rounds of 75's.

The Sun Devil Classic played on the spacious Goodyear Golf and Country Club gold course is one of the most prestigious golfing events in the collegiate ranks.

The Sun Devil Classic draws into its fold some of the most powerful golf teams in the nation including: UCLA, San Diego State, Fresno State, Cal State Los Angeles, New Mexico State, Air Force, BYU, the third place finisher in the NCAA last year, New Mexico, Arizona and host team Arizona State to name a few.

"In our loss to Utah we were a little down emotionally, but we

INTER COLLEGIATE

will be ready for the Sun Devil classic this weekend," said coach Karl Tucker before the Arizona trip.

He spoke highly of freshmen Joey Dills and sophomore Lance Suzuki.

"Dills has been coming on strong in our recent matches, and being a freshman we look forward to seeing Joey perform for three more years, said Tucker.

"As far as Lance Suzuki is concerned he was one of the main factors in our win on the West Coast at the Fresno Classic and the Western Intercollegiate. Lance has made a big adjustment this year, and I'll be counting on him to come through in Phoenix," he added.

As expected Leach is leading the Mountain Cats in individual honors. The junior from Navajo, California, has placed third in the nation for the last two years, and is still winning. Leach won medalist honors in four of BYU's tournament victories, and finished runner-up in the other two tournaments BYU has competed in.

Tee times are 7:30 a.m., Friday and noon on Saturday. The first 36 holes are set for Friday with the final 18 scheduled to be contested on Saturday.

The top five scorers on each team will count in the individual team standings, awards will be presented to the top team, top individual and best ball and low ball finishers.

Lance Suzuki, one of the Cougars' major factors in recent tournament wins, concentrates before his next shot.

No use to object, draftees; pleas void after induction

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court today upheld Selective Service regulations which prohibit a draftee from making a conscientious objector claim between the time his induction notice is mailed and the date he is ordered for induction.

The court, by a vote of 6 to 3, affirmed the conviction of William Ward Ehler in San Francisco, who was sentenced to two years in jail for failing to submit to induction.

Ehler contended that his draft board should have re-opened his case when he made up his mind he was a conscientious objector after receiving his induction notice.

In a majority opinion, Justice Potter Stewart noted that the general counsel of the Army had assured the Justice Dept. that such claims could be raised after a draftee was inducted.

"We are assured," Stewart said, "that present practice allows presentation of such claims, and that there thus exists no possibility that late crystallizers will find themselves without a forum in which to press their claims."

Justices William O. Douglas, William J. Brennan, Jr. and Thurgood Marshall dissented. Selective Service regulations state that a registrant's classification may not be reopened after the induction notice has been mailed unless a change in circumstances occurs "over which the registrant has no control."

Ehler wrote his draft board that he had been "unable to make a decision of such moment until faced with the absolute necessity to do so."

The government said that to reopen the classification of a man ordered to military service would require his removal from that month's draft call and unfairly expedite the call of another man.

Conference workshop

Youth ask total pull-out

ESTES PARK, Colo. (UPI) — A proposal to ask President Nixon to withdraw all American troops from Southeast Asia by Dec. 31 was before the White House Conference on Youth yesterday.

A foreign affairs workshop recommended immediate cessation of ground and air operations in Vietnam and called for a total U.S. withdrawal by the end of the year.

"We see no relationship between military pressure and the release of prisoners of war," said Judy Kooker, 22, of Midland, Mich., co-chairman of the foreign affairs workshop.

The 910 youth delegates and 411 adult delegates at the conference went into the final general assembly session Wednesday to decide whether some of the recommendations should be approved by the entire conference.

The reports and recommendations from 10 workshops covering topics from race relations to sex and the draft will be made into a conference report and sent to the White House for consideration.

Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton, speaking to a workshop on the environment on Earth Day, said he has encountered opposition over his position on the controversial Alaskan pipeline proposal.

"I've got a lot of people mad at me because I want the expertise... to look at this entire system from an environmental point of view and from a point of view of need," he said.

Inflation down

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Higher food prices helped drive the cost of living up 0.3 per cent in March, but the first quarter of 1971 still recorded the lowest rate of inflation in four years, the government said yesterday.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported the March increase, which coupled with a 0.2 per cent rise in February and a 0.1 per cent hike in January amounted to a first-quarter annual rate of 2.7 per cent.

That is the lowest since the first quarter of 1967 and even below the inflation pace President Nixon had predicted for this year.

Paul W. McCracken, chairman of the president's council of economic advisers, said the figures "were extremely good news and very reassuring in this battle to try and stabilize price levels."

Thane J. Packer

Thane J. Packer, head of BYU's Dept. of Youth Leadership, has been instrumental in leading the department which aids youth in their aims and challenges.

Packer's department was conceived by President Ernest Wilkinson in the 1950's for the purpose of training students in professional jobs in Utah. Packer came to BYU in 1959, succeeding Royal Stone, and served since as department chairman.

Packer's department was originally called the Dept. of Scouting training, dealing strictly with the Scouting program in which the youth expresses an interest.

With further growth of the department and increased interest in youth agencies, the name was changed to the Dept. of Youth Leadership," explained Packer.

Packer's department is now concerned with the three areas of youth, other youth related agencies and youth acculturation.

Youth acculturation is an area concerned with helping young people have problems adjusting to their local culture and environment.

There is a great professional field open in solving challenges of youth in the inner city and from the suburban and rural areas of America.

Acculturation must be set up for the youth in all of these areas," stated Packer.

Packer concluded, "Of all the areas of crucial need in America, our chief need must be with the guidance which must come to the youth of our time."

Campus Chest sets goal at $5,000 for hospital, school

The lid is off and the Campus Chest Drive is underway to raise funds for the Primary Children's Hospital, American Fork Training School and the local Boy Scouts. The drive will be held next week.

Reaching for a grand total of $5,000, sponsor Alpha Phi Omega has planned a "Beauty and the Beast" Contest. Campus wards, clubs, and organizations have entered "odd couples" of paired uglies and ravishing beauties. To cast votes, drop nickels, dimes, quarters, (or something more silent) into the bottle under the picture of the most mis-matched couple.

Car washes, candy sales, and direct soliciting will also provide funds for the drive.

"A Very Different World," a film about the Primary Children's Hospital produced by BYU, will be shown twice daily in the Varsity Theater. The Utah State Rhythm Band and Chorus will perform Tuesday at noon in the ELWC Reception Center. The group is from the Training School. Wednesday will see "The Rolling Wheels" from the Primary Children's Hospital, also at noon in the ELWC Reception Center. A group of handicapped Boy Scouts are tentatively scheduled to perform Thursday or Friday.

Alpha Phi Omega, a national service fraternity based on the Boy Scout Oath and principles, plans to divide the funds between the three institutions with 70 per cent going to the Children's Hospital, 20 per cent to the Training School, and 10 per cent to the Boy Scouts to buy needed equipment.

Touring groups prove 'World is our campus'

"Welcome to another fabulous Sounds of Freedom tour. We are grateful for your willingness to serve. This will be a hard and busy tour... girls, never appear in public in hair curlers... Have a good time!"

So reads the itinerary of the "Sounds of Freedom" as they board a bus today to begin a tour of New Mexico, Texas and Arizona.

But the "Sounds" aren't the only BYU entertainment group taking an academic vacation. A quick glance at the statistics would lead one to believe that the entire spectrum of BYU entertainment is on tour.

One week ago in Salt Lake City, Jane Thompson of the Program Bureau led 14 touring "Young Ambassadors" into the Boeing 747 which flew them to the East Coast. From there, it was on to Frankfurt, Germany and two and one half months entertaining U.S. servicemen in Europe.

Significant about this tour is the fact that it marks the fifteenth time since 1960 that the Program Bureau has left its stomping grounds to spread its talent nationally and worldwide.

Today, still another tour group of "Young Ambassadors" will be for shows in Idaho, Montana and Canada. The Canadian government has asked this group to perform on Canadian television.

Also enjoying sunnier shores are the American Folk Dancers, who last week appeared on Spanish television as a part of their European tour.

Finally, on May 29, the Sounds of Freedom will again leave the home shores for tour performances in the Canal Zone, Antigua Island, Guanajomo Bay, Cuba, Grand Turk Island and Patrick Air Force Base, Florida.

"The World is Our Campus" may prove to be an understatement.

Raindrops ...keep fallin' on my head" is one of the production numbers in the "Young Ambassadors" show which is touring European command bases during May and June.

'Trio'

Leaving for Canada today as part of the Program Bureau's "Young Ambassadors" are the Sheraton trio: Lee Andra Marsh, Nancy Schult, and Cheryl Bacon. The trio's experience includes tours in the Orient and the Caribbean.

Sounds

The Sounds of Freedom will leave today for a tour of New Mexico, Texas and Arizona. On May 29 they will perform in the Caribbean and Florida.

Generation Gap?

"You've come a long way baby." The members of the BYU Program Bureau have come a long way since their first overseas tour which left for the Orient in 1960. Fifteen additional tours have gone to Europe and Asia since then, including 15 members of the Bureau's "Young Ambassadors," who recently left for a 10 week tour of Europe where they will perform for U.S. Servicemen stationed abroad.

Lost and Found

Perennial piles of lost paraphernalia

By PEGGY BALL
Universe Staff Writer

The lost BYU and Found can be found in 108 ELWC, along with over 600 umbrellas, hundreds of notebooks, gloves and shoes, and a variety of coats, glasses, checkbooks, and everything else from musical recorders to computer program cards.

The Lost and Found moved from room 120 to 108 in January, creating a Hobby Store in 120 and moving room 108 to house approximately $300,000 worth of lost items.

Jay Eitner, assistant director of business, ELWC, said "Only 55 per cent of the items turned in are retrieved." He urged students to check with the Lost and Found for anything they might have lost in the last three months.

Did you ever wonder what happened to your side rule? How about that greeting card you bought but mislaid before mailing? Remember when you lost the baby bottle? The Lost and Found probably has it and will gladly return it.

BYU custodians turn in the largest number of lost items, Eitner said. Articles found in buildings are placed in a central location and are collected and carried to the Lost and Found by physical plant trucks every morning, he said.

Students and housing people also submit items to be returned.

Eitner said articles are date tagged when they are turned in and are held for 90 days, after which they go to the Lost and Found sale held every 60 days, to sell for 20-35 per cent of their original cost.

Items not sold are held for the next sale or sent to Desert Industries. Money is used to recover part of the cost of the Lost and Found procedure, said Eitner.

The Lost and Found is open for reclaiming of items Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

To those students who are tempted by the idea of claiming some of those handy lost items, a sale of all paraphernalia hoarded in the Lost and Found for the past three months will be held Friday.

Interested students will find the strange sale in room 245 ELWC from 1:30 to 4 p.m.
